[a] The Lowest Screening Level Values in this table were the lowest of: (1) RSLs for residential exposure (US EPA, May 2014), (2) SSLs for groundwater protection using and dilution attenuation factor (DAF) of 20, and Soil Saturation Level. RSLs corresponding to an ELCR of 1E-06 and an HQ of 0.1 were used.
[b] No commonly applied surrogate for this chemical.
[c] The CRQL values are generic to the CLP, and will be confirmed with the CLP laboratory, when it is selected by EPA.
Notes:
CRQL = Contract-required Quantification Levels
mg/kg = milligram per kilogram
Surrogate chemicals were used in this table to support the assessment of analytical sensitivity. The use of surrogates will be reviewed and may be revised during data evaluation and risk assessment.

1.0 Introduction and Purpose

This VI Protocol Data Collection Report presents the results of field activities which occurred between January 13, 2015 and April 14, 2015. The field activities were initiated to screen 36 sites for potential vapor intrusion (VI) at the Accelerated Operable Unit 1 (AOU-1) of the 700 South 1600 East Tetrachloroethylene (PCE) Plume Site (Plume Site).

The Plume Site is located on east side of Salt Lake City, Utah, with AOU-1 generally centered within the street blocks surrounding the Sunnyside Avenue and 1300 East Street intersection (Figure 1). The Plume Site is listed on U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) National Priority List (NPL) pursuant to Section 105(a)(8) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA). The EPA added the Plume Site to the NPL on June 21, 2013 and identified the Veteran's Affairs (VA) George E. Whalen Medical Center as the only potentially responsible party (PRP).

The field effort was an initial screening effort that will eventually include screening of 50 to 60 sites specified by the Remedial Investigation Workplan (RIWP) for VI screening during the AOU-1 investigation. The 36 initial sites represent approximately two-thirds of the total number of sites that will be screened.

The specific volatile organic compounds of concern (COCs) at the sites were: PCE, trichloroethylene (TCE), cis-1,2-dichloroethylene (1,2-DCE), and vinyl chloride (VC). Field screening results from each site were compared to established Risk Screening Levels approved by the EPA and Utah Department of Environmental Quality (UDEQ), and sites with indoor air or soil gas COC concentrations above risk screening levels (RSLs) were subject to further confirmation sampling and fixed base laboratory analyses.

Although VC was also a COC for AOU-1 with an RSL of 0.08 ppb (0.17 ug/m^3), subsequent to the start of field activities, it was determined that the HAPSITE™ could not reliably detect VC at the RSL concentration or at any concentration under 5 ppb and an alternate field protocol, which relied on the collection of SUMMA canisters to ensure vinyl chloride could be detected during the screening activities, was developed and approved by regulators.

The 36 sites consisted of 30 private residences, four private schools, one church, and an elder care facility. The sites were selected by VA from owners that voluntarily requested testing at public outreach meetings in 2014 and from subsequent volunteers that came forward after commencement of field activities. The site locations represented a cross-section of structure types, construction dates, depth-to-groundwater, and locations within and outside of the approximate Plume boundaries.

The sites were screened using an EPA and UDEQ-approved VI screening protocol that included the sampling of indoor air under ambient, negative, and positive pressure conditions; outdoor ambient air; and near-slab and open-field soil gas. The samples collected for VI screening included:

Table 1: Sampling Summary

Type Of Samples	Number Of Samples	Number Of Sites
Indoor Air	958	35
Outdoor Ambient	35	34
Near Slab Soil Gas	59	32
Open Field Soil Gas	10	4

This VI Protocol Data Collection Report provides a record of field screening activities and portable gas chromatograph/mass spectrometry (HAPSITE™) results at the 36 sites for indoor air, soil gas, and ambient air contaminants of concern (COCs). A second report, the Indoor Air QA Data Collection Report, provides the results of confirmatory SUMMA™ canister sampling conducted at the site.

The VI Field Screening Data Report consists of the following sections:

- Section 2 provides a summary of the data collection and quality assurance requirements for the use of the HAPSITE™ for vapor intrusion screening.
- Section 3 provides a discussion of the overall sampling program including a general timeline of activities, the total number/types of samples collected, and discussion of sites where field screening results for COCs exceeded the established RSLs.
- Section 4 provides discussions of any non-compliance issues related to HAPSITE™ use and field analyses, as well as a discussion of overall data quality and data gaps.

In addition, Appendices A through D provide copies of the final qualified field analytical results, copies of field logbooks, copies of the electronic field forms for each site, and copies of the raw HAPSITE™ data download files.

2.0 Summary of Quality Assurance Requirements

The VI field screening commenced on January 13, 2015 and continued through April 14, 2015. Each screening location was assigned an identification number by VA to protect the property owner's privacy. Each number consisted of four digits followed by a structure type designator, H, S, C, or B which represents a home, school, church, or business. The site IDs for the initial screening effort consisted of sites 0001-H to 0033-H, and 0036-H through 0038-H. The site locations are shown on Figure 1.

The field activities were performed under the revised draft EPA and UDEQ provisionally approved RIWP dated December 2014, the EPA and UDEQ-approved Draft Final - Sample and Analysis Plan (SAP) and Quality Assurance Project Plan (QAPP) dated October 2014, and a detailed Draft Final - Protocol for Performing Indoor Air and Near-slab Soil Gas Assessments, dated December 2014, and approved by EPA and UDEQ as an attachment to the RIWP. In addition, RIWP Minor Field Modification-01, effective February 1, 2015, and RIWP Minor Field Modification-02: Clarification of QAPP Amendment Number 1, effective February 10, 2015, and Quality Assurance Project Plan Amendment No. 1, effective February 10, 2015, were subsequently approved by EPA and UDEQ and superseded portions of the QAPP. The Draft Final RIWP was accepted by the EPA on July 7, 2015 and conditionally approved by UDEQ on July 17, 2015 and was issued as a final document. The controlling documents for the AOU-1 investigation are all referenced in the Final RIWP dated July 17, 2015. The specific quality assurance requirements for the VI field screening activities were presented in the Final RIWP and its appended documents dated July 2015.

Quality assurance included the development of a specific field protocol for use of the HAPSITE™ portable GC/MS to conduct detailed real-time field testing of indoor air concentrations and provided further details for documentation of calibration, field recordkeeping, Global Positioning System (GPS) location of samples, GIS-compatible database entries, and sample result verification.

2.1 VI Field Screening Protocol

The vapor intrusion investigational approach for AOU-1 was adopted from an Environmental Security Technology Certification Program (ESTCP) Project No. ER- 201119-Final Report (GSI, 2013) and ER-201119-GD-Standard Protocol (GSI, 2014) and provides an alternative to the conventional investigation method of indoor air and sub-slab testing. This method is also generally known as the Hill Air Force Base method, for the location where the method was originally pioneered.

The following activities were performed as part of the VI screening protocol.

- Pre-Assessment Activities – confirmed access agreements/permissions, schedules, and addresses for testing; property owner/occupant review of questionnaire for locating potential indoor air background sources; and building condition assessment for sampling locations.
- Outdoor Real-time Qualitative Sampling - conducted ambient outdoor (background) testing at an upwind location adjacent to the structure (when possible) using the HAPSITE™ in analyze mode to identify outdoor presence of target volatile organic compounds (VOCs).
- Initial Real-Time Quantitative Sampling – conducted under ambient conditions, interior floor-by-floor and (if necessary) room-by-room quantitative assessment of target chlorinated VOCs: PCE, TCE, and 1,2-DCE.
- Survey of Interior Background Sources – used the HAPSITE™ in survey mode to identify the presence of any elevated localized (sub-areas of rooms) VOC concentrations as indicated by initial building survey and the ambient results to identify and record locations of interior background sources.
- Survey of Potential Vapor Intrusion Entry Points – assessed vapor entry points using HAPSITE™ in survey mode for areas identified during initial building condition assessment inspection.
- Negative Pressure Real-Time Quantitative Sampling – placed the building interior, or if the structure was divided into discrete areas, the portion of the building interior identified as having the greatest potential for vapor intrusion, under negative pressure and conducted continuous (repeated samples at a central location) quantitative sampling for target COCs during depressurization of 5 pascals and an air exchange of at least 2.5 volumes.
- Positive Pressure Real Time Quantitative Sampling – placed the same portion of the interior where depressurization was previously performed under positive pressure of 5 pascals and conducted continuous (repeated samples at a central location) quantitative sampling in the same locations utilizing the same sampling procedures used during the negative depressurization.
- Near-Slab Real-Time Soil Gas Sampling – performed real-time, near-slab soil gas quantitative evaluation of COCs using the HAPSITE™ in analytical mode. Collected samples at driven temporary sampling probe locations adjacent to structures tested for indoor COCs. Sample probes were driven adjacent to the structure's foundation to a depth approximately six inches below the base of the foundation or to the top of the water table or to refusal, whichever occurred first.
- Indoor Air and Soil Gas SUMMA Canister Sampling and Indoor Sorbent Tube Sampling for Semi-volatile Organic Compounds (SVOCs) – were deployed where HAPSITE™ data indicated exceedances of the established RSL for any COC, based on location relevant to the plume and at other selected locations. Results of SUMMA™ Canister and sorbent tube sampling are included in a separate report titled Indoor Air QA Data Collection Report.

2.2 Quality Assurance Requirements

2.2.1 HAPSITE™ Use

The HAPSITE™ was operated by a KD Analytical Trained and Certified assessment team member. The trained assessment team member was familiar with the general use of the instrument, as well as with the project specific measurements and QC requirements.

The HAPSITE™ was used in two modes - Quantitative Analyze and Qualitative Survey. In Quantitative Analyze mode the instrument was able to detect and quantify the target chlorinated VOCs: PCE, TCE, and cis-1,2-DCE. The sensitivity of the HAPSITE™ for chlorinated VOCs in Analyze Mode was 0.1 to 0.5 µg/m3, which is below the characterization criteria (EPA RSLs); for PCE, but close to the criteria for the other selected target analytes: PCE (RSL 11.0 µg/m3), TCE (RSL 0.48 µg/m3), and cis-1,2-DCE (no RSL established by EPA).

Survey mode was used to screen for indoor background generating materials and for screening potential entry points for subsurface vapors. In the Survey Mode, the HAPSITE™ bypassed the GC column and sent a continuous sample directly to the mass spectrometer detector. For the Survey Mode, the HAPSITE™ was carried from room to room and the concentrator probe placed near a suspected source or near potential vapor intrusion points (e.g., foundation cracks) to identify concentrations of VOCs, as further discussed below. The sensitivity of the HAPSITE™ for the target analytes in Survey Mode was in the low mg/m3 range.

For the Analyze Mode, selective ion monitoring (SIM) mode was used to increase the detector sensitivity for the target analytes. The customized method for the HAPSITE™ included selecting the characteristic ions for each compound targeted; the temperature settings; GC temperature profiles, including ramp times and rates; and the timing and mass measurements associated with each scan set in the method. The equipment vendor provided the method programming pre-installed. The method was designed for low concentration samples (i.e., 0.1 – 10 ppbV range), but when high concentrations were encountered (e.g., 100 – 1,000 ppbv), the method was modified by reducing the sampling duration – effectively diluting the sample and raising the lower quantification limit for any lower concentration VOCs.

DRAFT

2.2.2 Calibration and QC Checks

For the Analyze Mode, tuning, initial calibration, continuing calibrations, and QC checks were performed to assure that the instrument met the data quality objectives. Prior to the analyses of any samples, blanks, or calibration standards in Analyze Mode, the instrument tuning check was performed to establish that the HAPSITE™ met the mass spectral ion abundance criteria. The instrument performance check (also known as the continuing calibration verification (CCV) gas was analyzed initially following the calibration of the HAPSITE™ and then at least once per 24-hour time period of operation. In the event the instrument performance check standard did not meet criteria, the HAPSITE™ was not used in Analyze mode until corrections (including recalibration) were made in accordance with the Operators Manual, however, the Survey Mode was able to be used to look for the selected ions of the chemicals of interest.

The HAPSITE™ was calibrated using a minimum of five chemical concentrations that span the monitoring range of interest (0.1 ppbv to 100 ppmv) in an initial calibration sequence to determine instrument sensitivity and the linearity of GC/MS response for the target compounds (PCE, TCE, and cis-1,2-DCE).

In the event a sample concentration overwhelmed the HAPSITE™ (i.e., concentrations completely saturated the detector as indicated by analytical results), the instrument required purging of the analytical system with nitrogen to clean the detector before the next sample can be analyzed. Purging was continued until the instrument results (blanks) indicated that no carry-over concentrations remained.

2.2.3 Storage and Routine Maintenance

The HAPSITE™ was stored at First Environment's field office in Midvale, Utah, a climate-controlled, dry location, where it was plugged into a stable power outlet and left in "Stand-by" mode – including over weekends. The use of Stand-by mode maintained the system temperature and carrier gas pumps and preserved the system calibration so that daily startup times were considerably shorter. As a result, the HAPSITE™ was able to maintain its reliability and calibration for up to a month.

A routine maintenance schedule for the HAPSITE, as described in the QAPP and in the Operators Manual, was implemented. Key maintenance included replacement of empty tuning standard cylinders and performing self-test programs before beginning sampling. The internal power source (battery) for the HAPSITE™ provided only two to three hours of operation time and, except when using the instrument in Survey Mode, the HAPSITE was placed on a cart and connected to external electrical 110 Volt AC power.

2.3 Recordkeeping Requirements

Information that was included in the project data record relative to the field study included field log books, sample collection and handling records, operational records, GPS data, chain-of-custody (CoC) forms sample receipt records, and shipping documentation. Field log books documenting the daily VI screening activities at each site were kept electronically via hand-held tablets.

The project Field Team Leader (HAPSITE™ operator) maintained a field logbook of daily activities associated with the instrument use. The Project Manager maintained a separate logbook to record site observations, site sketches showing outdoor features of a site, and general site proceedings. The log books were bound with consecutively numbered pages. All entries were legibly written in black ink. Any entry errors were corrected by drawing one solid line through the incorrect entry followed by the user's initials and date. The bottom of each page was signed and dated by the individual making the entries. Factual and objective language was used. All entries were complete and accurate so as to allow reconstruction of each field activity. Activities were recorded contemporaneously as the work proceeded.

The field logbook cover included the following information:

- job name;
- site activity name;
- start date;
- end date of last logbook entry.

Daily entries of the following information were recorded in the logbooks and on electronic field forms as follows:

- date and time, expressed in 24-hour (military) format;
- sampling start/stop times;
- weather conditions;
- personnel present;
- field observations;

DRAFT

- site identification and building layout (visual sketches where appropriate);
- locations of sampling points (GPS latitude/longitude coordinates and/or visual sketches where appropriate);
- descriptions of sample;
- sample identification number;
- numbers of samples taken;
- times of sample collection;
- number of Quality Assurance/Quality Control (QA/QC) samples taken;
- type and mode of field instrumentation;
- names of people collecting samples;
  all calibrations done;
- any other field instruments;
- any general observations or notes; and
- any deviations from the sampling plan.

Electronic field forms, including soil gas sampling data sheets, indoor air sampling data sheets, HAPSITE calibration records, and QC (CCV runs) information, were stored on a Microsoft Surface Pro tablet and used during field work to document the VI screening activities at each site.

Photographs were taken in the field to document sampling locations and conditions. A photographic log was kept within the electronic VI field form for each site and the date, location, photographer's name, and direction the photographer is facing (if appropriate) was recorded. Photographs were labeled, stored electronically, and submitted as attachments to the electronic field forms.

2.3.1 Mapping of Sample Locations and Geospatial Data

All outdoor sampling locations were located for GIS input using GPS survey techniques. A Trimble® GPS with sub-meter accuracy and additional software to perform post-processing data correction was used to survey soil gas sampling locations, surface water sampling locations, temporary groundwater monitoring points, and surface soil sample locations; elevations and orientations; utility clearances (as applicable); and other surface and subsurface features identified as useful to the project. Indoor air sampling locations were surveyed at the front entrance of the building tested, and an offset was measured to the center of the structure to determine the GIS location for all indoor air samples collected at the site.

DRAFT

If the coordinates at a survey location could not be determined due to the presence of tree cover or other interfering obstacles which prohibited adequate signal reception, coordinates were obtained at a minimum of two alternate locations (offsets) where reception was available close to the original survey location. The distance and bearing from each of the alternate locations to the original survey location was then determined using a measuring tape and compass.

2.3.2 Field Data Records

The Field Data Records include:

- log books;
- analytical data;
- electronic field forms;
    - sampling locations (GIS),
    - figures of sampling locations,
    - sample IDs,
    - photographs.

These records, prepared by the Program Manager, have been provided to the VA RPM, EPA, and UDEQ as Appendices A through D of this report.

3.0 VI Screening Results

The VI field screening (HAPSITE™) results are provided as an excel spreadsheet in Appendix A. The results are listed by the VA-provided Site ID numbers, followed by a unique sample name that includes the Site ID, sample date, sample type, sample number, and a suffix identifying the sample location. Hence a sample name of A-0001H-012715-IA-003-LIV can be identified as an indoor air sample collected from the living room of a residence at AOU-1 Site Location 0001-H on January 27, 2015.

The field efforts and HAPSITE™ screening is documented in the Project Manager and HAPSITE Team Leader Field Log Books provided as Appendix B. The VI Survey Electronic Field Forms are provided as Appendix C and include site-specific information and sample listings for each site, along with sample location (floor plan) sketch maps and copies of the Pre-Survey Questionnaire. The HAPSITE™ raw data output files are provided as Appendix D.

3.1 Indoor Air

A total of 958 indoor air samples were collected from 35 site locations (Figure 1) and screened using the HAPSITE. The sample total included 479 samples conducted under "as found" ambient conditions, 274 samples collected during negative pressurization of the site structures, and 205 samples collected during positive pressurization of the structures. Twenty-four samples were collected under ambient conditions from non-habitable spaces (spaces such as sump pits, soil floor crawl spaces, or wall cavities that cannot be occupied by a human) to further identify vapor entry points..

[(a)] = sample was collected under ambient conditions from a non-habitable space (a space such as a sump pit, soil floor crawl space, or wall cavity) that cannot be occupied by a human
IA = Indoor Air Ambient Pressure; NP = Indoor Air Negative Pressure

Concentrations of PCE from samples at habitable space locations exceeded the indoor RSL of 11 ug/m3 in a total of 10 samples at 3 (Figure 1) of the 35 sites where indoor air was tested; 0011-H, 0018-H, and 0037-H. Site 0011-H contained a PCE concentration of 19.9 ug/m^3 in an ambient sample from the basement bathroom and a concentration of 12.5 ug/m^3 in a negative pressure test sample from the basement family room. Site 0018-H contained PCE concentrations of 16.4 and 15.8 ug/m^3 in two ambient air samples from the basement bedroom and bathroom, respectively. Six samples collected from the basement laundry room during negative pressure testing at site 0037-H contained PCE concentrations ranging from 12.5 to 14.8 ug/m^3. No ambient indoor air samples from 0037-H exceeded the RSL for PCE.

All three of these sites are located within line of sight of the intersection of 1200 East and 900 South, where seeps and springs are abundant and historical water samples have indicated the presence of PCE in groundwater. Furthermore, samples from non-habitable locations (a soil floored crawl space at 0011-H, and basement floor/wall cracks at 0018-H and 0037-H) contained elevated levels of PCE. RSL exceedances for indoor air are shown with yellow shaded lines in the Appendix A data table.

PCE concentrations did not exceed the RSL at 0017-H or 0023-H in any indoor air sample from a habitable space during the screening activities, but these two residences had sub-grade covered groundwater sump pits in their basements that contained ambient PCE concentrations well above the indoor RSL. These two sites are also located in the portion of AOU-1 along the East Bench Fault where abundant seeps and springs containing PCE occur.

Indoor air concentrations of TCE from samples at habitable space locations exceeded the indoor RSL of 0.48 ug/m^3 in three samples at four sites; 0003-H, 0018-H, and 0022-S. At Site 0003-H, TCE was detected in an ambient indoor air sample collected in the main floor living room at a concentration of 0.66 ug/m^3. Site 0018-H had a TCE concentration of 0.49 ug/m^3 in the basement family room (immediately adjacent to rooms containing PCE RSL exceedances). Site 0022-S had TCE concentrations of 0.67 and 1.3 ug/m^3 from samples located in the 2nd floor girls restroom and the 1st floor cafeteria, respectively. The TCE exceedance at 0022-S may be attributable to indoor source materials and not vapor intrusion. A stainless steel cleaning solution containing TCE was observed in the 2nd floor maintenance storage closet. This material was reportedly used by the school staff to clean stainless steel bathroom and cafeteria fixtures.

3.2 Soil Gas

A total of 69 soil gas samples were collected from 34 sites shown on Figure 1. Of these, 59 were near-slab (defined as within five feet of a structure's foundation) collected at 32 sites. Ten were open-field (greater than five feet from a building) soil gas samples collected at four sites.

Only one near-slab soil gas sample, 0017-H-SG-001-4' (Figure 1), contained an RSL exceedance for PCE (soil gas RSL of 370 ug/m^3) with a concentration of 430.9 ug/m^3. Soil gas sample 0011-H-SG-003-4' contained a PCE concentration of 358 ug/m^3, just below the RSL. TCE did not exceed its soil gas RSL of 16 ug/m^3 at any sample location. No open-field soil gas sample had concentrations exceeding RSLs for PCE or TCE. RSL exceedances for soil gas are shown with light blue shaded lines in the Appendix A data table.

3.3 Outdoor Ambient Air

A total of 34 outdoor ambient samples were collected and analyzed from AOU-1. Only one outdoor ambient sample, site 0008-H, contained levels and TCE above the RSL. Subsequent QA review of the raw data found that the instrument analytical confidence was well below the 0.699 acceptance criterion.

4.0 Deviations from VI Sampling Protocol and QAPP/SAP

4.1 VI Protocol Deviations

No significant deviations from the final approved VI protocol affected the usefulness of the initial VI screening results. Site 0031-S, a large-school campus, had previously conducted an independent indoor air sampling program and only consented to soil gas testing. Calibration records, auto tune records, and daily CCV samples show the HAPSITE™ to have been in calibration during testing at all 36 sites. Review of the raw data shows that the HAPSITE program failed to save the analytical results of a location fewer than five times over the entire field effort.

Minor deviations from the final VI protocol were primarily photograph omissions and minor glitches with the early version of the electronic VI Survey Form that resulted in some data being re-entered at the end of the day from written field logbook notes.

4.2 QAPP/SAP Deviations

No significant QAPP/SAP deviations affected the VI screening results with respect to the evaluation of the indoor air vapor intrusion pathway at the 35 sites fully tested under the VI protocol during this phase of work

Near-slab soil gas sampling probes could not be installed after numerous attempts at two sites, 00032-H and 0038-H, due to very shallow refusal on large cobbles or boulders; however, these two sites did not have any elevated detections of indoor air COCs. Near-slab soil gas samples were collected from a depth of four feet or less at many sites as a result of the rocky soils prevalent within AOU-1, and the vertical delineation of soil gas was limited. The lack of vertical delineation data will need to be addressed during future sampling phases by using mechanical rather than manual probe installation methods. Due to access restrictions to mechanical equipment, this may not be feasible for many near-slab locations. Vertical delineation of soil gas concentrations relative to the ground surface and water table at open-field locations should still provide adequate information.

Open-field soil gas sampling was to obtain additional information for extrapolation of the potential for VI to occur at properties adjacent to the initial VI testing sites. However, the number of open-field soil gas sample locations along street right-of-ways and near any seeps and springs observed on the 36 sites was limited. Ultimately, open-field samples were only collected at sites 0018-H, 0019-B, 0026-H, 0031-S. Large cobbles and boulders in sandy soil intervals, tight clays, and the close spacing of residences and their associated pavements and landscaping greatly limited the manual installation of open-field soil gas sample probes. In addition, much of the public roadside right-of-ways were narrow and underlain by numerous utility lines and large trees. Future soil gas investigation efforts will require mechanical equipment, and we will likely need to consider installing some points through concrete driveways or paved streets rather than through vegetated surfaces.

The ambient outdoor sample from Site 0007-H did not properly record in the HAPSITE™ data file and no outdoor ambient data was available for this site.

4.3 Data Gaps

Any detailed evaluation of data gaps with respect to the VI Screening program in AOU-1 is premature. The investigation, as described in the RIWP, is only about 50 percent complete after this initial phase of work.

Initial Testing with Hapsite indicated there was a potential indoor source for TCE, at the VAs request, summa canisters were placed on main level and in basement living areas to confirm results.
The soil gas confirmation sample was collected since the site was deemed a location near, if not within the PCE plume area, and suitable for a confirmation sample in accordance with the QAPP and Ammendment I.

Elevation at base of porch: 4446' msl. The first attempt at testing at this site was on 1/15/15- but the Hapsite failed to operate properly. Two soil gas probes were also attempted on 1/15- SG-001 and SG-002. SG-001 was located on edge of City ROW by sidewalk. SG-002 was located approximately 5 ft north of sidewalk in front yard of home, just to left of walk to house. Both locations were pushed to 4 and 8', but the tight clay soil held a 10" hg vacuum and no gas samples could be collected. On 2/27/15, a third soil gas probe was installed just to left of the front porch steps, in the flower bed. SG-003 was pushed to 4' and 7'. THe 4' sample did not hold a vacuum for more than 20 seconds and a sample was successfully collected. The 7' sample refused on a hard surface in tight clay and held a 10" vacuum for over two minutes and no sample was collected.

switched from -5.0 Pa to -15.0 Pa due to high winds outdoors which caused our flow/building pressure to rapidly fluctuate, and shut off fan. Initial ambient pressure was -7.9, but during higher gusts, reached -22.0. The higher negative pressure differential allowed the fan to maintain a steadier constant pressure in the home.42,265 total cfm through house during test.

Comments

After aborted (Hapsite failure) on 1/23/2015 suggested possible RSL exceedance in basement, two Summa canisters placed onsite on 2/6/2015: 0018H-TO-001-OUT was outdoor air in backyard; 0018H-TO-BR1 was indoors-in basement bedroom. These samples were analyzed using TO-15 SIM, and the results were above the upper calibration limit, and deemed unreliable.

Building is stair-stepped into hillside, so levels that are above grade on west end become below grade to east. only a small portion of building rooms are completely below grade. Sumps on lowest levels convey water from french drain system to storm sewer via gravity flow.
Elevation of School Building at Main Entrance on 700 S = 4443' ft msl.
Water is accessible at grate in stairwell leading to rectory garage - grate accesses the french drain water conveyance line. Location ID: GW-001, Lat=40.754464, Long= 111.860363; Elev= 4445' estimated. GW also accessible at the outfall (solid steel manhole) to storm sewer in sidewalk near the SW corner of school. Location ID: GW-002, Lat= 40.754283, Long= 111.861227, Elev = 4413 msl.

I have no idea if this has anything to do with the plume or just air quality, but I've developed a seasonal cardiovascular deficiency (close to asthma but not quite with a nasty cough). However, it only happens in the winter so it probably has more to do with air quality than a plume effect. I had the house tested for radon last month and we don't have a radon problem.

No soil gas sample collected. The property was almost entirely covered by the home, concrete driveways, a patio, and thick landscaping. Undergro sprinkler lines also limited suitable probe locations. A small area of soil and grass near the patio in back.of the house (North side) was determined t installation of a soil gas probe was attempted. Refusal on rocky material was encountered at 12" or less during multiple attempts and ultimately no s collected.

INDOOR QUALITATIVE BACKGROUND SOURCE IDENTIFICATION

In Survey Mode, move from room-to-room, and note any ion tics on the structural drawings, and indicate in the comments box below.

Start Time NA End Time

Comments

The most likely areas for conducting background surveys were the laundry room (observed fresh dry cleaning) and the sewing craft room in basement. These rooms were crammed full of clothing, fresh cloth, and general clutter that lined walls and floors. Ran full ambient air analyses in lieu of surveys. INDOOR QUALITATIVE VAPOR POINT ENTRY SURVEY

In Survey Mode, identify potential vapor entry points (sumps, foundation cracks, exposed soil) on the lowest level of the structure and note any ion tics on the structural drawings, and indicate in the comments box below. Attach pictures if applicable.

Start Time NA End Time

Comments

The basement walls are essentially lined with boxes and bolts of fabric from a home sewing business, and from general clutter. Could not access the basement wall-floor joining to look for or survey cracks or holes.

1.0 Introduction

The purpose of this memorandum is to present a summary of the groundwater, surface water (including stormwater), and soil samples collected during the February through May 2016 investigations performed in support of the ongoing Remedial Investigation (RI) for Accelerated Operable Unit 1 (AOU-1) at 700 South 1600 East tetrachloroethylene (PCE) Plume Site, Salt Lake City, Utah. The field activities were initiated to help define the southwestern downgradient and western and southern cross-gradient extents of the PCE Plume in surface water and in the shallow groundwater within AOU-1. This memorandum also presents the field logs and validated Geoprobe® groundwater screening analytical results, and documents any variances to the RI Work Plan (First Environment, Inc. [FE] 2015) and Quality Assurance Project Plan (QAPP) (EA Engineering, Science, and Technology, Inc., PBC [EA] 2016a) with regard to groundwater, surface water, and soil sampling. Additional data reports are currently being prepared to summarize the indoor air sampling and TO-15 analysis performed in support of the AOU-1 RI. The data collected during the investigation at AOU-1 will be evaluated in a future AOU-1 RI report. The resultant groundwater and surface water data will also be used to guide additional groundwater characterization and placement of permanent monitoring wells during the subsequent site-wide PCE Plume RI.

The PCE Plume was first identified in 1990 during routine monitoring of the Mt. Olivet irrigation well. The 700 South 1600 East PCE Plume Site is located on east side of Salt Lake City, Utah, with AOU-1 generally centered within the general residential area bounded by 500 South and Michigan Avenue between 1300 East and 1100 East. AOU-1 includes a portion of the East Side Springs area, an area that runs along the East Bench Fault, and the dry gulch area which is located perpendicular to and mostly east of the East Side Springs area.

In June 2010, a release of crude oil from a pipeline in the area near the mouth of Red Butte Canyon, northeast of the Veterans Affairs Medical Center, resulted in an investigation at the East Side Springs area. Chlorinated volatile organic compounds (VOCs), including PCE and trichloroethylene (TCE) were detected in the surface water associated with seeps and springs along the fault in AOU-1. The location of the seeps and springs near residences and other occupied structures and the shallow depth to groundwater has raised concerns regarding potential vapor intrusion into occupied spaces. Additionally, the relationship of the PCE and TCE contamination to the larger groundwater Plume has not been investigated.

In light of the limited groundwater analytical data for AOU-1 and the concern for impacts from vapor intrusion, this sampling event helps to evaluate the vapor intrusion pathway. Data collected during this segment of the RI includes shallow groundwater sampling from temporary groundwater monitoring points, surface water, and stormwater.

The 2016 groundwater, surface water and soil sampling was conducted in accordance with the following planning and procedural documents:

- RI Work Plan (FE 2015)
- QAPP (EA 2016a)
- Sampling and Analysis Plan (Attachment A of the RI Work Plan, FE 2015); and
- Minor Field Modifications
    - Minor Field Modifications #3 - #6 to the RI Work Plan (EA 2016b);
    - Minor Field Modifications #7 - #13 to the Sampling and Analysis Plan (EA 2016c)
    - Minor Field Modification #16 to the RI Work Plan (EA 2016d); and
    - Minor Field Modification #17 to the Sampling and Analysis Plan (EA 2016e).

2.0 Geoprobe® Assessment of Groundwater

2.1 Introduction

To assess the nature and extent of the 700 South 1600 East PCE Plume and to characterize vapor intrusion potential, temporary small-diameter groundwater monitoring points were installed throughout the East Side Springs area of AOU-1. Temporary groundwater monitoring points were installed via a Geoprobe® rig and sampled from 22 February to 6 April 2016. Thirty-four of the temporary groundwater monitoring points were abandoned immediately after sampling and the remaining ten temporary monitoring points were left in place as piezometers to enable future groundwater sampling.

Depth to groundwater was approximately 36 feet below ground surface near the intersection 1300 East and 900 South, and the presence of seeps and springs between 1300 East and 900 East indicates that groundwater intersects the topographic surface within AOU-1. Depth to groundwater at some locations adjacent to the Wasatch Fault line exceeds 45 feet below ground surface. The potentiometric surface for AOU-1 indicates that groundwater generally flows west-southwest.

Daily information and notations of observations associated with field activities in support of AOU-1 were documented in the field notebooks and are included in Attachment A. Photographs documenting temporary groundwater monitoring point installation and sampling are located in Attachment B.

2.2 Screening Samples

Groundwater screening samples were collected during the Geoprobe® investigation to direct the placement of Geoprobe® drilling locations. The screening results were utilized in consultation with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs to select placement of temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-27 through GW-62 (stepping out further from the East Side Springs area if preliminary VOCs are detected or stepping in if preliminary VOCs are not detected) in order to best delineate the PCE Plume. Samples were collected in certified clean containers in accordance with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) specifications with appropriate preservative and delivered to ALS Environmental in Salt Lake City for expedited analysis of a short list of VOCs (PCE, TCE, cis-1,2-dichloroethene, and vinyl chloride). Low groundwater yield at temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-07 and GW-17 provided enough sample volume for analysis via the EPA Contract Laboratory Program (CLP), but not enough sample for screening purposes. A summary of the screening groundwater sample results is included in Table 2-1.

2.3 Temporary Groundwater Monitoring Point Installation

Blue Stakes of Utah was notified at least two full business days prior to any subsurface installations to allow utility companies to mark their lines. The Utah Division of Water Rights was notified prior to drilling temporary groundwater monitoring points to a depth greater than 30 feet via a Start Card (Attachment C). The official well driller's reports were filed with the Utah Division of Water Rights within 30 days of the completion of regulated work on the temporary groundwater monitoring points (Attachment C).

A total of 50 boring locations were drilled in public right-of-ways and private property using a GeoProbe® 6620DT drill rig with 2.25-inch rods during the period of 22 February to 8 March 2016. Two of the borings, GW-01 and GW-15, were installed manually via hand auger since the parcels were inaccessible to a drill rig. The first 26 boring locations were loosely positioned based on recommendations in the RI Work Plan (FE 2015) to screen the area for the presence of chlorinated organic compounds and were either shifted to avoid underground utilities or to refine the groundwater sampling area. The remaining 24 locations were positioned in order to determine the extent of the PCE Plume. Based on the first round of groundwater screening data, twelve of these borings were renumbered and repositioned in order to refine the PCE Plume. Borings were drilled until the first saturated interval was encountered. Due to gravel and cobbles at depth at 6 of the locations (GW-02, GW-33, GW-35, GW-42, GW-57, and GW-58), the drill rig hit refusal prior to reaching groundwater. At these locations, no temporary groundwater monitoring points were installed and the boreholes were backfilled with soil cuttings. Detailed lithologies were recorded on soil boring logs for 26 of the locations (boring locations GW-01 through GW-26) where PCE was previously detected above the screening level in indoor air samples and shallow groundwater. Fifty (50) percent of the remaining 24 boring locations, and were recorded on soil boring logs (Attachment D).

The temporary groundwater monitoring points were constructed of three-quarter inch diameter Schedule 40 polyvinyl chloride (PVC) flush-thread-jointed casing and screen with PVC end caps. The temporary groundwater monitoring point screens were machine-slotted with a slot size of 0.010 inches and were 5 feet in length. The filter pack consisted of 10/20 silica sand and was poured into the annular space to approximately 1 foot above the top of the temporary groundwater monitoring point screen. After the sandpack was placed, approximately 1 foot of bentonite chips were placed in a similar manner on top of the sand pack and was allowed to hydrate naturally. The remaining borehole annular space was backfilled with soil cuttings. Individual temporary groundwater monitoring point construction details are included on the boring logs and summarized in Table 2-2.

2.4 Groundwater Sample Collection

Temporary groundwater monitoring points were purged and sampled using a peristaltic pump with three-eighths inch diameter polyethylene tubing in accordance with the RI Work Plan and QAPP. Low-flow purging and sampling techniques were utilized however, depth to groundwater was not measured during purging due to the small diameter of the temporary groundwater monitoring point precluding insertion of the water level indicator. When the temporary groundwater monitoring points yielded insufficient water to pump or the groundwater depth was deeper than that of which a peristaltic pump could operate, a dedicated one-half inch diameter polyethylene bailer was used to purge and sample the temporary groundwater monitoring point.

During purging, water quality parameters (temperature, specific conductivity, dissolved oxygen, oxygen-reduction potential, pH, and turbidity) were measured using a portable water quality meter (Table 2-3). Field data for pH was not collected at temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-23 and GW-39 due to a water quality meter malfunction. Purging was complete after the water quality parameters stabilized (FE 2015) or if a minimum of three well volumes were removed. Details regarding the purge method, water quality measurements, purge volumes, and samples collected were recorded on groundwater sampling forms (Attachment E).

Once water quality parameters stabilized, or three well volumes of water had been purged from the temporary groundwater monitoring point, groundwater samples were collected for laboratory analysis in appropriate sample containers and preserved on ice. Groundwater at 2 of the 44 temporary groundwater monitoring points (GW-19 and GW-54) did not recharge after purging; therefore, no groundwater samples were collected from these temporary groundwater monitoring points.

2.5 Analytical

Groundwater samples were collected in certified clean containers in accordance with EPA specifications with appropriate preservative and shipped to the EPA designated CLP laboratory (Chemtech Consulting Group) for analysis of VOCs in accordance with CLP method protocol. Samples from a subset (10 percent) of these locations were also analyzed for semivolatile organic compounds (SVOCs), target analyte list (TAL) total and dissolved metals at the CLP laboratory. Samples from the same locations were also shipped to the EPA Region 8 laboratory for total dissolved solids (TDS), anions (chloride, nitrate, and sulfate), and pH analysis. Total alkalinity was analyzed at ALS Environmental. Samples collected for stable isotope analysis (hydrogen and oxygen) were collected from groundwater sampling points GW-11 and GW-20 and were submitted to the University of Utah Stable Isotope Ratio Facility for Environmental Research. A summary of the groundwater sampling and analysis is included in Table 2-4.

Eight of the 42 locations showed no detections of PCE or TCE. PCE and degradation product concentrations were highest directly south and east of East High School (Figure 2-1). The concentrations of PCE decrease as groundwater in the East Side Springs Area flows west-southwest.

2.6 Surveying

Locations (northing and easting) and elevations (ground surface and top of casing) for the temporary groundwater monitoring points were surveyed by a licensed land surveyor in the State of Utah from 4 to 9 March 2016. The survey was performed using a Trimble R-8 Model 2 Global Positioning System receiver and a Trimble TSC3 data collector. The northing and easting were surveyed to ±0.1 feet using North American Datum 83 Zone 12 and the ground surface and top of casing elevations were surveyed to ±0.01 feet in accordance with National Geodetic Vertical Datum 29. Locations and elevations for the groundwater monitoring points are provided in Table 2-2. Locations for surface water, stormwater, and soil sampling locations were identified on Figure 3-1 using Google Earth due to locations on resident's properties and access issues.

2.7 Site Inspection

The 44 borings that were placed in public right-of-ways required a Permit to Work in the Public Way from the Salt Lake City Division of Engineering prior to drilling. In accordance with the Permit, an assigned inspector was contacted prior to commencing work and was updated regularly on the status of the project. The permit also specified that the permittee would restore all public way facilities modified by the permittee to a condition that is comparable to or better than the condition that existed prior to the commencement of the work. After installation, the assigned inspector deemed the final site conditions at all of the boring locations to be acceptable and in compliance with Salt Lake City standards (Attachment F).

3.0 Surface Water and Stormwater Survey and Characterization

3.1 Introduction

PCE-impacted groundwater daylights in the form of several springs and seeps in the East Side Springs area, potentially contributing to PCE-impacted surface water (e.g., drains, ponds, overland flow, and sumps). Collection of surface water samples from identified and accessible seeps, springs, sumps, and Red Butte Creek within AOU-1 was performed to assess the lateral extent of PCE contamination. Several of the springs discharge to the municipal stormwater system, therefore water samples were collected from selected Salt Lake City stormwater sewer manholes, located in and downgradient of AOU-1, to determine if groundwater seepage and discharge from foundation drains is impacting stormwater lines. Surface water and stormwater were collected from 26 February to 11 May 2016.

The first 19 surface water and stormwater locations (SW-01 through SW-19) were positioned based on recommendations in the RI Work Plan (FE 2015). Several of these locations were repositioned where seeps and springs were not present on the property, if access was not granted from property owners, or to fill data gaps. Surface water and stormwater sampling locations are presented on Table 3-1 and Table 3-2.

Photographs documenting surface water and stormwater sampling activities are located in Attachment B.

3.2 Surface Water Sampling

Several seeps and springs in AOU-1 emerge as diffuse wet areas that form small trickling streams on slopes, while others have been altered by property owners to collect and channel flowing water into landscape features or into the street away from their homes. Surface water locations are shown on Figure 3-1.

Surface water samples were collected using a peristaltic pump with three-eighths inch diameter polyethylene tubing, or as a grab sample by filling containers directly, or, if seep discharge was low, with a decontaminated stainless steel sampling syringe. Table 3-1 summarizes the type of surface water that was sampled. Prior to collecting a sample, water quality parameters (temperature, specific conductivity, dissolved oxygen, oxygen-reduction potential, pH, and turbidity) were measured using a portable water quality meter (Table 3-3). Details regarding the collection method, water quality measurements, and samples collected were recorded on surface water sampling forms (Attachment G).

3.3 Stormwater Sampling

Several seeps and springs in AOU-1 are mitigated and discharged to stormwater lines; therefore, Salt Lake City stormwater sewer manholes, located in and downgradient of AOU-1, were sampled. Stormwater sample locations consisted of mitigated spring water storm drains, stormwater lines, and the Jordan and Salt Lake City Canal (Table 3-2). Stormwater locations are shown on Figure 3-1.

Stormwater samples were collected at least 24 hours after any precipitation. Stormwater samples were collected using a peristaltic pump with three-eighths inch diameter polyethylene tubing. When stormwater was moving rapidly, a decontaminated bucket was lowered directly into the flow of the storm drain. The grab sample was then decanted into appropriate containers for analysis by the laboratory. Prior to collecting a sample, water quality parameters (temperature, specific conductivity, dissolved oxygen, oxygen-reduction potential, pH, and turbidity) were measured using a portable water quality meter (Table 3-3). Details regarding the collection method, water quality measurements, and samples collected were recorded on stormwater sampling forms (Attachment G).

3.4 Analytical

Surface water and stormwater samples for laboratory analysis were collected in certified clean containers in accordance with EPA specifications with appropriate preservative and stored on ice for transport to the laboratory. Surface water and stormwater samples were sent to the EPA designated CLP laboratory (Chemtech Consulting Group) for analysis of VOCs in accordance with CLP method protocol. Samples from a random subset (20 percent) of these locations were analyzed for SVOCs, TAL total and dissolved metals, alkalinity, total dissolved solids, and anions at the EPA CLP laboratory and the EPA Region 8 laboratory. Ten percent confirmation splits of the surface water and stormwater samples were collected and shipped to two different CLP laboratories (Shealy Environmental Services and Bonner Analytical Testing Company) to be analyzed for VOCs, SVOCs, and TAL total metals for independent quality assurance. Samples for stable isotopes (hydrogen and oxygen) were collected from all surface water and stormwater sampling locations and are being stored at 4 degrees centigrade until the surface water and stormwater data is received from the CLP laboratory at which time additional samples may be selected for isotope analysis at the University of Utah Stable Isotope Ratio Facility for Environmental Research. A summary of the surface water and stormwater sampling and associated analyses is included in Table 3-4. Validated surface water and stormwater analytical results will be included in the RI Report.

3.5 Ecological Survey

An ecological checklist (Attachment H) was completed for each surface water and stormwater location in order to obtain qualitative information about ecological components (terrestrial and aquatic life). The results from the ecological survey will be provided in the RI Report.

4.0 Soil Sampling

Surface soil samples were collected at AOU-1 to aid in the baseline human health risk assessment. The samples were collected from areas with highest potential for residual soil contaminants.

4.1 Surface Soil Sampling

A total of 3 surface soil samples were collected from the 0 to 0.5-foot interval at locations adjacent to seeps or springs (surface water locations). Two soil samples, SS-09 (adjacent to SW-09) and SS-26 (adjacent to SW-26), were collected at locations where groundwater exhibited the highest PCE concentrations along Sunnyside Avenue. One soil sample, SS-01 (adjacent to SW-01), was collected at a location where PCE was not detected in the groundwater. Soil sampling locations are presented on Figure 3-1 and Table 4-1.

Surface soil samples were collected using dedicated stainless steel spoons and soil was homogenized in dedicated stainless steel bowls. Soil for VOC analysis was not homogenized in order to prevent volatilization and was collected using 5-gram core samplers.

4.2 Analytical

Soil samples for laboratory analysis were collected in certified clean containers in accordance with EPA specifications and preserved on ice. Soil samples were shipped to the CLP laboratory (Chemtech Consulting Group) for analysis of VOCs, SVOCs, and TAL metals in accordance with CLP method protocol. A summary of the surface soil sampling and associated analyses is included on Table 4-2. Validated soil analytical results will be included in the RI Report.

5.0 Data Verification

Data verification was conducted for the groundwater, surface water and soil sampling field documentation. Verification included peer review of the field notebook information, information included on field forms, drilling information and chain of custody forms. In addition, verification for completeness was performed on the analytical data received from the three CLP laboratories, the EPA Region 8 laboratory and ALS Environmental. Any noted discrepancies in documentation or missing information was identified and rectified prior to this reporting.

In addition to verification of the analytical laboratory data, the data will undergo validation by an independent validation subcontractor. Validation will be performed in accordance with EPA Stage 2B (90 percent of data) and Stage 4 (10 percent of data) following the EPA CLP National Functional Guidelines for Superfund Organic Methods Data Review (EPA 2014a) and EPA CLP National Functional Guidelines for Superfund Inorganic Data Review (EPA 2014b). Results of the validation will be provided in the data validation summary report and final validated data will be included in the RI Report.

Field Deviations from the RI Work Plan
2016 Groundwater, Surface Water, and Soil Sampling Technical Memorandum
700 South 1600 East PCE Plume, AOU-1: East Side Springs

Deviation	Reference	Rationale
Proposed locations for temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-01 through GW-26	RIWP[(1)]	Temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-01, GW-02, GW-04, GW-07, GW-08, GW-12, GW-13, GW-14, GW-19, GW-21, GW-24, and GW-25 were shifted from their proposed locations to either avoid underground utilities or to refine the groundwater sampling area.
"The field investigation for surface water and very shallow groundwater will commence in the vicinity of the 11 spring and seep locations (pending owner approval to access) previously sampled in 2010 and 2011, then proceed to spring and seep locations identified, but not tested during previous investigations (pending access approval), and for groundwater continue at properties whose owners have already requested indoor air pathway evaluation."	QAPP[(2)]	The timeline for groundwater and surface water sampling was based on access and availability of properties.
"Up to 25 shallow temporary groundwater sample points will be manually installed through the water table near ponds, seeps, or springs adjacent to residences or occupied structures...An additional 35 temporary shallow groundwater sampling points will be installed mechanically to depths up to 50 ft using a truck or tractor-mounted GeoProbe™ Tool."	RIWP[(1)]	Only two temporary groundwater monitoring points were installed via hand auger due to the depth of groundwater at the proposed locations. The remaining temporary groundwater monitoring points were installed via a remotely operated GeoProbe™ drill rig.
"Monitor static water level to ensure that the drawdown is minimal, preferably less than 0.3 foot at a purge rate of 0.2 to 2 liters per minute."	RIWP[(1)]	The depth to groundwater was not measured during purging of temporary groundwater monitoring points due to the small diameter of the well precluding insertion of the water level indicator while the tubing is present.
"To the extent possible, the purge water will be routed through a flow cell to measure pH, electrical conductivity, oxygen-reduction potential, turbidity, and dissolved oxygen with field water quality meters."	RIWP[(1)]	Field data for pH was not collected at temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-23 and GW-39 due to a malfunction of the pH probe on the water quality meter.
"Expedited turn-around time will be requested for analysis of preliminary COPCs in groundwater from the CLP laboratory during GeoProbe™ investigation in order to select additional groundwater sampling locations…"	QAPP[(2)]	Low groundwater yield at temporary groundwater monitoring points GW-07 and GW-17 provided enough sample volume for analysis via the EPA Contract Laboratory Program (CLP), but not enough sample for screening purposes.

Field Deviations from the RI Work Plan
2016 Groundwater, Surface Water, and Soil Sampling Technical Memorandum
700 South 1600 East PCE Plume, AOU-1: East Side Springs

Deviation	Reference	Rationale
Proposed locations for surface water locations SW-01 through SW-19	RIWP[(1)]	Surface water locations SW-01, SW-02, SW-03, SW-05, SW-07, SW-08, SW-09, SW-10, SW-13, SW-17, SW-18, and SW-19 were repositioned if seeps and springs were not present on the property, if access was not granted from property owners, or to fill data gaps.
"Three soil samples will be collected from the 0 to 0.5 ft soil interval at locations determined to be associated with elevated soil gas levels or near surface water springs/seeps containing elevated target cVOC concentrations."	RIWP[(1)]	Only two soil samples were collected at locations where groundwater exhibited the highest PCE concentrations along Sunnyside Avenue. The third soil sample was collected at a location where PCE was not detected in the groundwater to serve as a baseline sample.
"All outdoor sampling locations will be located for GIS input using GPS survey techniques. A GPS with sub-meter accuracy and software to perform post-processing data correction will be used to survey soil gas sampling locations, surface water sampling locations; temporary groundwater monitoring points, and surface soil sample locations."	RIWP[(1)]	Surface soil and surface water samples were not surveyed due to access issues.
"Sample identification and tracking procedures will incorporate the sample numbering system outlined in Table 3. "	RIWP[(1)]/SAP	The sample numbering system was used with exception of the parcel code and the date code which were not included with the groundwater, surface water, or soil sample identification. The sample identification included the "A" for AOU-1, the sample type "GW, SW, or SS" and a sequential number-01, -02, etc., with the exception of soil samples. Soil sample identification used a number that corresponded to the adjacent surface water sample number.

6.0 Deviations to the Remedial Investigation Work Plan

During the implementation of the 2016 Geoprobe®, surface water and soil sampling activities, situations occurred that required deviation from the RI Work Plan and/or its appendices. The deviations, work plan reference, and rationale for the deviation are included in Table 5-1.

In addition to deviations associated with the field activities, deviations occurred during the sample analyses at the CLP laboratory (Chemtech Consulting Group), EPA Region 8 laboratory and ALS Environmental. These deviations are noted below.

1. 1,4-dioxane was analyzed using the CLP SVOC method. The validation of the data resulted in rejection of the 1,4-dioxane results in the groundwater samples based on the associated quality control data. This potentially presents a data gap for the groundwater data as 1,4-dioxane was requested to be included with the analysis by the EPA due to its use as a stabilizer for 1,1,1-trichloroethane.
2. Analytical method deviations were noted from those listed in the QAPP.
    a. The CLP laboratories implemented the more current versions of the CLP Statement of Work analytical methods for VOCs, SVOCs, and metals than were included in the QAPP. The methods SOM02.3 and ISM02.3 were used in lieu of SOM02.2 and ISM02.2 however, this does not impact the data quality or usability.
    b. Nitrate nitrogen was requested for analysis for the groundwater samples by EPA Method 300.0 to be analyzed at the EPA Region 8 laboratory. The data reported was analyzed for nitrate/nitrite nitrogen by EPA Method 300.0. The data may be biased slightly high due to inclusion of nitrite however, is still usable to achieve project objectives.
    c. TDS was requested for analysis at the EPA Region 8 laboratory by Standard Methods SM 2540C, however the laboratory reported the data by EPA Method 160.1. The data is still usable to achieve the project objectives.
    d. Alkalinity was requested to be analyzed at ALS Environmental using Standard Methods SM2320B however, upon receipt of the data report it was learned that ALS Environmental ran the samples using EPA Method 310.1. This data is still usable to achieve project objectives.

Dear Applicant: RE: MONITOR WELL#: 1657001M00

Regarding your request to drill 50 MONITOR WELL(S), the anticipated drilling depths will exceed the minimum regulated and reporting depth of 30 feet, thereby requiring permission from the Division of Water Rights to proceed with this project.

The specifications outlined in your non-production well project application meet the State Engineer's requirements and permission is HEREBY GRANTED. Therefore, this letter is your authorization to proceed with the construction of the well(s) in accordance with those specifications and with respect to the following provisions:

1) Small diameter casing is to be used in the construction of the well(s) and no more water is to be diverted than is necessary to determine the quality of the groundwater by obtaining representative samples as required by the project.

2) The well(s) must be drilled by a currently licensed Utah driller and must be drilled in a manner consistent with the construction standards cited in the Utah State Administrative Rules for Well Drillers (R655-4 UAC).

3) The enclosed Driller (START) Card form must be given to the licensed driller for his submittal prior to commencing well construction. The other enclosed form is the 'Applicant Card.' It is YOUR RESPONSIBILITY to sign and return this Applicant Card form to our office upon well completion.

4) At such time as the well(s) are no longer utilized to monitor ground water or the intent of the project is terminated, the well(s) must be permanently abandoned in a manner consistent with the Administrative Rules (R655-4 UAC).

5) THIS PERMIT MAY NOT BE THE ONLY AUTHORIZATION NEEDED TO DRILL A WELL. The applicant is responsible for obtaining other permits/authorizations from federal agencies, other state agencies, and/or local jurisdictions as applicable. Moreover, if the applicant is not the landowner, it is the applicant's responsibility to ensure that approvals/permissions have been obtained to trespass and drill a well(s) on the property. THIS PERMIT DOES NOT GIVE AUTHORIZATION TO TRESPASS ON PRIVATE PROPERTY.

NOTE: Please be aware that your permission to proceed with the drilling under this authorization expires June 10, 2016.

Sincerely,

Jim V. Goddard, P.G.

For surface seals in unconsolidated formations (clay, silt, sand, and gravel), will you be using a temporary conductor casing or other formation stabilizer (e.g., drilling mud) in the surface seal interval to maintain the required annular space?

(YES) or NO (Circle one).

Answering 'NO' suggests that you will be placing the surface seal in an open and unstabilized annular space, which may require onsite inspection of seal placement by the State Engineer's Office.
